

Game reopens West Street store after last year's July riots

Following last year's July riots, the Game store on West Street in Durban, which has been serving customers for over 50 years, has reopened for business.

Several aspects of the store have been improved, including its appearance, accessibility, navigation and visibility. Game's new store also boasts new products, expanded product ranges, and new services like the tech squad, which assists customers with set-up, upgrades and troubleshooting of smartphones, tablets and laptops.
