

SA startup awarded for excellence

Cybatar, South African tech startup has been named Africa's Cloud Computing Company at the African Corporate Excellence Awards 2015, dedicated to recognising the changing fortunes of businesses across Africa and to rewarding the people and firms that have done tremendous work. The awards, hosted by Corporate Vision Magazine in the United Kingdom, demonstrates that South African innovation and entrepreneurship is on the rise.

The awards focus on all aspects of business, from the top level decision makers to the often unheralded but no less vital support and behind the scenes staff and rewards outstanding achievement in all areas pertaining to twenty-first-century business, from customer care and marketing to innovation, implementation and performance.
