'Buy now pay later' users to exceed 900 million by 2027

8 Aug 2022

The number of credit-active accounts increased from 86.77 million to 89.37 million in the quarter ended December 2022. The number of impaired accounts has decreased from 19.17 million (22.10%) to 19.09 million (21.36%) in December 2022, a decrease of 87 991 quarter-on-quarter and 458 062 year-on-year.

The cycle of interest rates has been on an upward swing. Consumers with payment obligations are under severe financial pressure because of increased payment towards their obligation.

Assistance for overindebted consumers

The NCR urges consumers to draft monthly budgets to manage their expenses. For those consumers who are battling with their debt repayments, the NCR encourages them to contact their credit providers for assistance with payment re-arrangements.

Consumers must not avoid credit providers when in distress. In the worst-case scenario, consumers are urged to contact their nearest registered debt counsellors to seek help. Debt counselling is intended to assist consumers who are over-indebted.

Over-indebtedness is a state where the consumer's income is not sufficient to cover all financial obligations and living expenses. A registered debt counsellor should be able to assist the consumer with budget advice and debt restructuring, says Nomsa Motshegare, chief executive officer at the NCR.
