

Zimbabwe: Media laws could be relaxed

Harare: The leadership of Zimbabwe's Movement for Democratic Change (MDC) is claiming that state-controlled media are still using negative reporting, in contravention of a power-sharing deal designed by the country's main political parties on 15 September, 2008.

President Robert Mugabe, leader of ZANU-PF, and prime minister-designate Morgan Tsvangirai, leader of the MDC, and Arthur Mutambara, leader of a smaller MDC faction, are parties to the deal brokered by former South African president, Thabo Mbeki.
