Ad Stars has also welcomed John Mescall and Gabriela Scardaccione to the final jury. As global executive creative director and global creative council president at McCann Worldgroup, based in New York, Mescall will oversee the Film and Video Stars categories. Whereas Gabriela Scardaccione, global creative director at Mother based in London, will oversee the Design and Print categories.

They join Merlee Jayme (global president, dentsu mcgarrybowen), Ali Rez (regional ECD, Impact BBDO, UAE) and Natalie Lam (CCO for Asia Pacific, Middle East and Africa at Publicis Groupe) on this year's Executive Jury.

"I'm excited to join the Ad Stars jury. It's a global festival that's based in a corner of the globe that's renowned for innovation, technology and culture, and I'm curious to discover ideas I've never imagined from creators I've never encountered before," says Mescall.

Before relocating to New York in 2014, he was CCO of McCann Australia, leading McCann Melbourne to become the world's most awarded agency in 2013. Today, he provides creative leadership across McCann's global brands, and works closely with the network's creative and strategic leaders across all markets.

Scardaccione adds: "I've heard that Ad Stars is different from other awards shows – the festival has an interesting purpose and seems committed to supporting creatives by offering an awards platform that's free to enter. I'm sincerely looking forward to experiencing the show for myself, it's an honour to join the 2021 Executive Jury."

She joined Mother in its earliest days when the agency was first founded in London. She launched Madre in Buenos Aires in 2005, and today – back in London – she is part of the Global team and is responsible for spreading Mother's vision around the world.
