

IABC announces its new regional chairperson

The Africa Region of the International Association of Business Communicators (IABC) announced its new regional chairperson for the 2014 to 2016 term at the association's 21st annual general meeting. Daniel Munslow will be servicing as chair for the current 24-month term.

While serving as chair, Munslow will continue to refine the business processes which ensure that the IABC Africa region runs effectively, efficiently and independently. He supports the association's continuing evolution and strategy. Consistent with this strategy will be the Board's focus on the development of a professional body that supports business communication.
