

F1 Review: Abu Dhabi 2019

The last Grand Prix of the 2019 season at Abu Dhabi resulted, not for the first time, in an intense season ending with a whimper, as the race was dominated by the reigning world champion, Lewis Hamilton.

The venue has not been known for scintillating Grands Prix, although there has been a phenomenal race or two in the supporting classes. Making his 250th start in this Grand Prix, the Englishman was never challenged when the lights went out, taking his 84th career victory and his 11th for the 2019 season. Nobody could hold a candle to the six-time world champion this season.
